Jawaid Haider

Jawaid Haider has practiced and/or taught architecture in Asia, Australia, Europe, and the United States. Currently a Professor of Architecture at the Pennsylvania State University, he has served as Interim Head of the Architecture Department and as In Charge of the Graduate Program in the past. He has received many awards and recognitions; most notable are the Fulbright Senior Scholar Award to Australia, College of Arts and Architecture Faculty Award for Outstanding Teaching, and the Inaugural Award for Faculty Outreach “in recognition of exemplary leadership in applying scholarship in support of society.” Professor Haider is an expert on intergenerational and children’s environments and is viewed as one of a handful of authorities on the subject of architectural design as it applies to children’s museums and other learning institutions. His interdisciplinary research underscores how the designed environment can be child-friendly, elder-friendly, and potentially provide improved intergenerational interaction and relationship formation in civic spaces in cities. He has published extensively in his areas of expertise and has received several major grants for his architectural research, including grants from the NEA Design Arts Program and the Graham Foundation. He has produced two versions of a documentary film—for public television and instructional purposes—on the architecture and design of hands-on museums. He has lectured and offered workshops throughout the world and has been interviewed on television and radio in the United States and abroad.
